Chemical fire forces Akron evacuations

by M.R. Kropko
Associated Press writer

AKRON — Authorities ordered about 2,000 people to stay away from their homes Monday as firefighters helplessly stood watching a butane fire that started when a train derailed and a tank car exploded.

Police asked residents of 1,500 homes within a half mile of the derailment to evacuate after 21 CSX cars jumped a Conrail track south of downtown, near the B.F. Goodrich Chemical Plant, on Thursday about 7:30 p.m. The fire spread briefly to the Goodrich loading dock, prompting the evacuation of workers.

No one was seriously injured, officials said.

The University of Akron, as well as Akron public and parochial schools, were closed Monday. Metropolitan bus service was canceled because the city bus garage is near the derailment site. Businesses in the area of the explosion shut down.

A CSX crew used a crane Monday to begin pulling derailed cars upright, but Fire Chief George Romanoski said firefighters could do nothing about the exploded tank car except to let it burn. Fires that started at a valve on an adjacent car and beneath a third car were put out, he said.

Mary Noble, 83, who was awakened by her landlord and a police officer as she slept Sunday in her Akron apartment, waited patiently but nervously in a school cafeteria Monday as two small fires continued to burn.

"I'm calm now, but inside I'm worried," she said.

Cathy Miglin, a Kenmore High School employee who was helping the evacuees, heard the blast from her home two miles west of the derailment.

"I heard the explosion and all the sirens, and the dog next door was howling, so we knew something was up," she said. "And then we saw that the sky was all lit up."

"The flames shot at least 500 feet in the air, just like a big mushroom going up. And the sirens just started coming from everywhere."

R.L. Leckie, spokesman for CSX Transportation in Jacksonville, Fla., said nine of the derailed cars were carrying butane. One of the tankers was ruptured by the derailment and it immediately caught fire, he said.

Lukens says sex case a 'set-up'

by James Hannah
Associated Press writer

GREENVILLE, O. — U.S. Rep. Donald Lukens said Monday he was set up and approached for money in connection with an alleged sexual incident involving a teen-age girl.

In an interview at his district office in this western Ohio city, Lukens denied the charge of contributing to the unruliness and delinquency of a child, a 16-year-old girl. A Franklin County grand jury in Columbus indicted the 58-year-old Middletown Republican on the misdemeanor charge Thursday.

"I was approached for money on the basis of the general allegation," he said. "I said, 'Hey, I'm not going to pay any money. Nothing happened.'"

Lukens said he was approached on more than one occasion for money, with the people involved threatening to go to police and the media. Lukens questioned why the police were not immediately notified following the alleged incident.

"I believe that I was set up and I know for a fact because I was the person they asked for money," Lukens said.

He would not specify who approached him for money.

In an interview with WDTN-TV, in Dayton, Lukens denied having sex with the girl.

Phone pranks result in penalties

by Dennis Robaugh
staff reporter

While prank telephone calls and playing with the phone may seem like harmless jokes to some, police are concerned that students do not realize the penalties for phone fraud.

According to Inspector Jim Ray of the campus police, a conviction for telephone harassment is a first degree misdemeanor and can carry a six month jail term and/or a $1000 fine.

For persons with a previous conviction of telephone harassment, the offense is considered a fourth-degree felony, he said.

Students may be referred to Standards and Procedures for disciplinary action if convicted, he said.

Telephone harassment takes a variety of forms, Ray said. There are nuisance calls — which are mostly hang-ups — obscene calls and threatening calls, where the victim is threatened with bodily harm, he said.

"With a threatening call, it's a matter of priority," Ray said. "The victim should file a complaint right when it happens."

Once a complaint is filed, the complainant must sign a consent form giving the police authority to monitor telephone calls, he said.

"All the roommates must give consent to have their line monitored," Ray said. "Otherwise, I won't do it."

Telephone calls can be traced on-campus through a system provided by Telecommunications Services, said Tom Gross, hardware support manager for Computer Services.

The telecommunications system is designed to trace the origin of phone calls. A phone call originating on-campus can be traced to its exact origin, he said.

"Special phone equipment is put in place to trace the origin of a harassing telephone call," Gross said.

Calls originating from outside the University can be traced to one of the 200 trunk lines coming into campus, but not to its exact origin, he said.

The special equipment must be in place before telecommunications can trace a call, he said.

Before calls can be monitored, a complaint must be filed with the police and the consent forms signed, he said.

"Once a student signs the consent forms, we can monitor the origin of all incoming phone calls and all outgoing phone calls as well," Gross said. "Phone calls are monitored maybe seven or eight times a semester."

Some cases have been resolved through the use of monitoring equipment, he said. However, Ray said students are very helpful when dealing with harassment cases.

"Students often come up with their own suspects," he said. "So our job is a bit easier."

Measles outbreak may reach BG

by Shelley Banks
staff reporter

Although the University has not experienced a measles outbreak like Kent State University and the city of Toledo, the possibility of contamination exists, according to Dr. Joshua Kaplan, director of Student Health Services.

A Kent State student who attended the University's Leadership Conference last weekend was infected with the measles and contagious, Kaplan said.

"The fact that Kent is experiencing a measles outbreak may or may not have affected the students here," he said. "But, since the student from Kent exposed up to 1,000 University stu-

Free vaccinations to be administered

University students should be aware of their immunization records to prevent an outbreak of measles on-campus, according to the director of the Student Health Center.

Dr. Joshua Kaplan said, beginning Tuesday at 8 a.m., the Student Health Center will administer measles vaccinations to students not immunized before the age of 15 months.

Although the vaccine for measles is usually expensive, the Ohio Department of Health has donated 150 vaccines to the Health Center, according to Kaplan.

"Students should take advantage of the free vaccination because it usually costs about $20-$30 per shot," he said.

Kaplan said this is the critical time for immunization because no cases of measles have been reported at the University.

"We want to catch this before it goes into its first wave. The reason Kent State Univershut down the university," he said.

Since the disease is highly contagious, Health Services at Kent State is offering free immunizations administered by the State Department of Health.

"We tried to immunize the students that did not have the immunization before they were 15 months old," he said.

In addition, students who contracted the disease were sent home for a week. Cranston said all Kent State athletes were immunized to prevent the spread of the disease by the teams while traveling, Cranston said.

Tuesday

News in Brief

According to the National Weather Service at the Toledo Express Airport, snow is likely today, with temperatures in the 30s; chance of snow 60 percent. Tonight will be variably cloudy with lows in the mid-teens and a 50 percent chance of snow. Tomorrow will be partly cloudy with highs in the mid-20s.

Walleye run to draw crowds to local rivers

TOLEDO (AP) — The annual walleye run in the Maumee and Sandusky rivers should begin in earnest within the next two weeks, attracting thousands of fishermen nationwide and sinking millions of dollars into northwest Ohio, officials said Monday.

"We are talking big fishing," said Darryl Allison, Ohio Department of Natural Resource's northwest Ohio fisheries director. "It is the first big fishing run of the season. For most anglers, walleye is a magic word."

The annual walleye run in the Lake Erie tributaries draws people from more than 30 states and pumps millions of dollars into the local economy, Allison said. The run officially starts March 1 and ends May 30.

"We expect the big walleye runs to start around the middle of March and peak the first week of April. By mid-April, there only will be a few big ones left," he said.

The Walleye is popular among fishermen, said Art Weber, spokesman for the Toledo-Lucas County Metroparks.

"Walleye is a great sport and eating fish," he said. "They are rough and tumble. You can get an 8-pound fish that puts up a pretty good fight," he said.

Help the disabled

One out of every 11 Americans has some sort of physical or learning disability. The disability does not always occur at birth. Age and accidents can change the way a person lives.

With this in mind, making life easier for those with disabilities should concern all. We advocate the University to take a stronger stand for its disabled students.

The approximately 100 disabled students at the University sometimes have trouble getting the resources they need. Sometimes, all it takes is extra time for taking a test. But other times, the blind student could use a "talking" computer or a deaf student needs an interpreter to pass a class.

The University has an Office for Handicapped Services, set up under Affirmative Action. That office, however, is comprised of just one man and cannot service all the needs of disabled students — especially if it requires dollars.

While disabled students have some access to state money through the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, it is not always enough.

These students deserve the right to a complete education and all efforts should be made by the University to accommodate their special needs. By eliminating all unnecessary expenses across campus, the funds could be made available to help.

After all, the University's purpose is to provide a complete education — for all students.

City must aid needy

Fight the good fight...

And an area citizen is fighting to make the plight of the homeless a little less desolate.

In Toledo, the Rev. Harold Lewis, director of the Home Crusade for Christ, has been fasting in an effort to establish a shelter for the city's homeless citizens.

His efforts have resulted in the generation of nearly $19,000 toward a $50,000 goal, which will be used to purchase a vacant building and turn it into a 24-hour shelter. This shelter will feed, house and educate eight to 12 inner-city families lacking appropriate lodging.

However, after Lewis has spent nearly three months of ingesting only water and fruit juices, the donations — which have been primarily from area churches, residents and industries — are beginning to taper.

While the efforts of Lewis are not conducive to his well-being, they are to be commended for addressing a serious problem facing the city. The city, on the other hand, is choosing to avoid the problem by rejecting Lewis' plea for assistance.

Understandably, Toledo is forced to protect itself in the midst of requests from its largest corporation, Trustcorp, for financial assistance.

There are methods that can be pursued, though. The preferred manner of gathering the money would be to join the city and several area corporations in a program to match the funds already generated by Lewis — thereby allowing the purchase of the vacant building to house the city's homeless.

Lewis has made us aware of the problem. Now, a combined effort is the only solution to battling the growing problem of homelessness.

Suicide article made incorrect assumptions

The BG News on Feb. 6 carried a front-page story which some readers might have found alarming. The story reports the number of suicide attempts for this past semester has exceeded the total number of suicide attempts for all of last year — 18 vs. 12.

Thus, if the current rate of suicide attempts continues into the spring semester, the University will experience a 300 percent increase in the suicide attempt rate over the last year. Two comments about this story are in order.

First, the increase in suicide attempts may reflect only a short-term trend. The article may be read as implying that one semester can be used as a basis for estimating the suicide attempt rate in another. Making such an extrapolation is legitimate only if the rate of suicide attempts is fairly constant across semesters.

No figures are provided in the article, but it seems reasonable to suppose — given the rarity of suicide attempts (7 per 10,000 students last year) — the rate of suicide attempts at the University has varied considerably from one semester to the next. Relatedly, last year may have not been a representative year in that the rate of suicide attempts may have been unusually low. Also, I wonder whether consideration is given to repeat suicide attempts, which can inflate overall rates and give a somewhat distorted view of the situation.

In any event, it is premature to jump to any conclusions about the suicide proneness of University students. If something is brewing, it will take a longer time span to detect any reliable trend. We may have experienced nothing more than a random fluctuation in suicide attempts.

This is not to say a suicide attempt should be dismissed lightly. To the contrary, a suicide attempt is the best predictor of a completed suicide. My point is the evidence at hand does not warrant our becoming unduly alarmed about the current situation at the University.

Second, the article states that, according to Lisa Ziska-Marchand, director of counseling at the Link, "the most suicides are in the 18-to-25 age group." This is not factually correct. Statistics compiled by the Centers for Disease Control (1986) indicate the suicide mortality rate increases from ages 15-19 to ages 20-24, but the Statistics Abstract of the United States (1985) also indicates the suicide mortality rate does not peak at 20-24 years. Among white males, who have the highest suicide mortality rate, the rate (indicated per 100,000) goes from about 28 per 100,000 at ages 20-24 to about 37 at ages 25-34, to about 26 at ages 35-44 to about 24 at ages 45-54 to about 38 at ages 55-64 and about 35 at age 65-plus.

Incidentally, the ratio of suicide attempts to suicide completions is estimated by some authorities to be 50 to 1 among college students. Using the CDC statistics, one would predict for all persons ages 20-24 a suicide attempt rate of 8 per 1,000 which is more than 10 times higher than the suicide attempt rate for the past year at this University.

Again, I do not minimize the seriousness of suicide; suicide among the young is a tragedy of great proportions. At the same time, we should realize that a possibly unrepresentative statistic can have damaging effects on the University. For example, it would be most unfortunate if parents decided not to send their children to study here based on the mistaken notion that the University is an unhealthy place for young people.

Staff wage hike not to blame

Recently in an article printed in The BG News and The Daily Sentinel Tribune concerning the increase in student fees of 6 percent, a quote from the vice president of planning and budgeting, Chris Dalton, gave the direct impression to many classified staff that a disproportionate amount of the blame for the 6 percent stems from the big wage increases for the classified staff.

Unfortunately, many students and parents who have to pay these increased fees may have gotten this same impression. Indeed, The BG News' editorial, in citing its opposition to the 6 percent raise in fees, also called attention to the raises for classified staff without citing the reasons for the needed increase.

To clear up the possible misconception, I requested a breakdown of the amount generated by this increase per student. Of the total increase of $134, the money is divided as follows:

General expenses — $56.39
Operating expenses — $22.50
Insurance benefit increases — $19.47
Classified staff wage pool — $8.19
Student wage pool — $7.17

Since 1983-84, the average wage increase has been 5 percent. This is the lowest of any group on-campus. Whether this trend continues is one of the issues that classified staff council will continue to devote a great deal of time to, for we feel we should be paid above the average person who holds a similar job, just as the faculty and administrative staff justifiably feel.

Although I discussed this with Vice President Dalton and he assured me the intent of the quote was not to single out the classified staff for blame in the increase, to even unintentionally connect the 6 percent increase of student fees to the classified staff pay increase in the manner, as was done, and, more importantly, perceived, is unfortunate and inaccurate.

Minority Affairs chair selected

by Laura Hardy
staff reporter

The new Minority Affairs Chairman of the Undergraduate Student Government said one of his main goals will be to increase minority participation in USG.

Marwan Tantash, sophomore undecided major, was elected to the position Monday night at the USG General Assembly meeting.

Tantash said he would like to see more minority representation in USG and said he will work with University organizations to encourage minorities to become involved with the student government.

Also at Monday night's meeting, Larry Green, junior liberal studies major, was sworn in to the position of senator by Kevin Coughlin, USG vice president.

Green has served on the Faculty Standing Committee and helped with promotions for the "American Pictures" program presented Feb. 8 at the University.

The General Assembly also considered several fund requests from University organizations.

Diego Jarrin, president of the Latino Student Union, requested $500 to promote Hispanic Awareness Week. His proposal, which was unanimously approved, stated that the goal of the week is to increase knowledge of the Hispanic culture and lifestyles through forums and workshops.

Also approved was a request to fund an all-campus spring dance marathon. Proceeds from the event will be donated to the United Way, according to Melissa Dunn, the USG representative initiating the idea for the event.

'Massacre' success probed

by Jeff Batdorf
staff reporter

While more than 1,000 students attended "Massacre II — And the Dream Lives On" Saturday evening, the dance committee will meet tonight to discuss if the dance will be held next year.

Sean Harriel, co-chair of the dance, said the committee is unsure whether students learned the message behind the dance and an evaluation will be held to determine the results.

"We tried to make people learn about racial unity while having a good time, but that depends on how people interpreted it (the dance)," Harriel, junior biology major, said.

He said the committee did not receive feedback about the event because those in attendance did not use the suggestion box provided.

Despite this, Harriel said the committee believes the dance was a success and the event will "probably" continue next year.

He said with more than 40 campus organizations participating in the event, the objective of the dance was accomplished.

"The main focus of the dance was to bring all ethnic groups together for one main event and we had representatives from all ethnic groups on campus," Harriel said.

He said although the student turnout this year was greater than last year, there was no media coverage of the dance.

Jon Felton, co-chairman of the event, said the committee tried to get 93-Q WRQN to broadcast from the dance floor and WTVG Channel 13 and WTOL Channel 11 in Toledo to do live reports at the dance, but was unsuccessful.

Felton, senior secondary education major, said the main purpose

County radon levels tested

by Fred Wright
staff reporter

The Wood County Health Department will conduct random radon-level tests in the next few months as part of a federal program.

Larry Sorrells, director of environmental health for the Wood County Health Department, said the department will conduct charcoal canister tests for radon. Participants in the tests will mail the canisters directly to a federal testing center.

Sorrells said it is unknown if radon levels in the county are at a safe level.

According to a pamphlet distributed by the Environmental Protection Agency, radon is a radioactive gas which occurs in nature. It is the result of a breakdown of uranium in minerals found in soil.

Sorrells said radon becomes a problem when it is not allowed to dissipate into the atmosphere. The gas becomes trapped and accumulates in closed air spaces — such as homes — which leads to higher concentrations of radon, he said.

According to the EPA, exposure to the higher concentrations can increase the risk of developing lung cancer. This risk depends on the amount of time spent in contact with the gas.

The EPA has established an unsafe concentration of radon at a level of four picocuries or more of radon per liter of air. A picocurie is one quadrillionth of a curie, a measurement for radiation. The level of four pCi/l is equivalent to getting 200 chest x-rays a year.

"If people want to test their homes for radon, radon tests can be bought at various retail stores," Sorrells said.

Dennis Marsden, manager of K-Mart, 1111 S. Main, said his store sells les have been reported in the city, according to Dr. Richard Wenzel, health commissioner for Toledo and Lucas County.

"Most cases have been contained in an area around St. Francis DeSales High School," Wenzel said. "But the spread could incorporate surrounding areas."

Phones

Another area of telephone abuse Ray investigates involves the fraudulent use of BG Call Card numbers, Ray said.

Many cases are students randomly trying to guess a call card number or dialing mistakes, he said.

"There isn't a day that goes by where I don't get a computer printout with dialing mistakes," Ray said.

Students who attempt to illegally dial call card numbers are questioned by police, he said.

"I sit the students down here and talk and very often they were just trying to find someone's card number," he said.

"I can tell you, it's very hard to do."

However, when many different call card attempts with invalid numbers come from the same origin, police investigate for possible misuse, Ray said.

"There are a lot of computer hackers out there today," he said. "Every time there is an attempt to misuse a number it has to be checked out."

Ray said most of the fraudulent calls this year occurred around the holidays, but those cases have been cleared up.

"When students get their phone bills and have a call they didn't make we can trace that call back to its origin on-campus," he said.

Ray said he advises students to keep their numbers in a safe place and not share them with anyone since the cardholder is accountable for any calls with their number, he said.

But Ray said there is another mistake that often shows up on his printouts of call card numbers.

According to Gross, students sometimes trigger a flag in the computer when they use inexpensive push button phones that do not put out accurate tones.

Gross said these tones are misinterpreted by the telecommunications system and the result is an inaccurate BG call card number.

Fitness gains credibility

Report organizes certification for instructors

by Ivan Groger
staff reporter

Prompted by a lack of proper certification for physical fitness instructors, one University faculty member created a national clearinghouse to improve the deficiency.

Janet Parks, chair of sport management division in the school of health, physical education and recreation, said the National Clearinghouse for Fitness Certifications was created to help employers of physical fitness instructors, consumers who use fitness centers and people interested in being certified.

The clearinghouse published a report detailing 18 certification agencies of aerobic, fitness and strength and conditioning instructors who responded to a survey, according to Parks.

The report lists the organizations and their certification requirements and procedures, renewal requirements, number of applicants for 1987-1988, percent earning certification, current number of certification holders and most frequent employment setting, she said.

"Before this, there was no form of organization. We're not suggesting the requirements become standardized but we are suggesting the public needs to know the differences," she said.

At the University, students and faculty may receive better instruction when they go to be certified, she said, because the guidelines will help them decide which certifications they should obtain.

Anne Tuite, graduate assistant in fitness and sport physiology, said the report can narrow the choice of career fields.

"It lends credibility to the profession and weeds out those that shouldn't be teaching," she said.

Parks said by being aware of different certifications when joining a health club, consumers will be able to check the instructors' credentials.

"Some health clubs don't require their instructors to be certified; that's why you have to educate the consumer," she said.

The instructors' employers now will be able to discriminate among the different certifications on applicants' resumes, she said.

Grammy award-winning jazz guitarist Joe Pass smiles with satisfaction as he hits a sweet note at last night's performance at Bryan Recital Hall.

Award-winning guitarist jazzes recital audience

by James A. Tinker
staff reporter

Grammy award-winning jazz guitarist Joe Pass performed last night before a near-capacity crowd in Bryan Recital Hall.

Performing both solo and accompanied selections, Pass displayed his talent which has been enhanced by past performances with jazz greats such as Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, Ella Fitzgerald, Dizzy Gillespie and Oscar Peterson.

Pass won the 1974 Grammy for Best Performance by a Group for his collaboration with Oscar Peterson and Niels Pederson on the album "The Trio."

Following an upbeat first half during which Pass performed solo, he was joined on stage by the guitar-playing University assistant professor of music Chris Buzelli, associate professor of music Jeff Halsey on bass and drummer George Hindenach.

According to Buzelli, Pass' ability allows him to be an expert soloist.

"He's the master of the unaccompanied solo guitar," Buzelli said.

Swaying to the music, Pass played such toe-tapping numbers as "You Stepped Out of the Green," "It's a Wonderful World" and a variation of "When You Wish Upon a Star."

Pass' visit to the University was not limited to his performance, however.

During an afternoon lecture to music students, Pass offered comments about his playing style and gave advice on ways to improve music quality for jazz hopefuls.

"Just because something is correct theoretically — that doesn't mean it sounds good," he told the students.

Pass' lecture emphasized the importance of having a good ear for music and the necessity of intertwining melody and motion in one's guitar playing.

His performance was sponsored by the Cultural Events Committee, University Activities Organization, the Toledo Jazz Society and the BGSU Guitarists.

The second pair of Falcons is scheduled to unmask during the final home basketball game March 4 against the University of Toledo.

Job fair offers work for summer

by Jennifer Taday
staff reporter

Although it may be the dead of winter, the time has arrived to start thinking about finding a summer job.

Vicki Blasius, University employment specialist, said more than 100 employers will receive applications for summer employment at the summer job fair Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom.

"The employers include 60 percent of summer camps and other areas, such as hospitality management, retail and merchandising positions and temporary services," she said.

The job fair will include opportunities to garner information on internships and cooperative education jobs.

David Stanford, assistant director for the University cooperative education program, said he will inform students of summer and fall job opportunities.

"We will stress to students the importance of gaining quality work experience each term," Stanford said.

Blasius said students can find jobs that interest them or relate to their majors.

The emphasis of the job fair is not on signing contracts, she said.

Employers represented in the event will provide contacts and further information about their companies. This will provide ideas for employment, Blasius said.

"Now is the time to start planning for summer jobs," she said.

Bush concludes 5-day Asian trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush returned home Monday night from a five-day Asian voyage that he pronounced a "productive and rewarding" journey and moved to take personal command of the struggle to win confirmation for John Tower as defense secretary.

In a prepared statement he read at the foot of the ramp to Air Force One, Bush said his trip to Japan, China and South Korea demonstrated that the United States "is and will remain a Pacific power."

"It's great to be home. God bless the United States of America," Bush said in the chilly darkness at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland. Vice President Dan Quayle was on hand to welcome the president back from his first overseas voyage.

In his brief statement, the president said he had held "thoughtful and candid conversations" with world leaders, including the several he met with in Japan, where he attended the funeral of Emperor Hirohito. From there he went to China for two days, followed by a five-hour stopover in Seoul.

"I return tonight pleased with the progress made toward lasting and mutually beneficial relationships," Bush said. He said work remains to be done toward encouraging the growth of democracy, working for human rights and strengthening international alliances.

Bush made no direct reference to the Tower nomination in his air-

USSR delivers arms to Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union exported about $515 million worth of military equipment to Nicaragua last year, the second highest total since the Kremlin began weapons deliveries in 1980, according to a new U.S. government report.

The report says last year's delivery of 19,000 tons of equipment came during 68 ship visits to Nicaraguan ports, an average of about one every six days.

The unclassified analysis, compiled by intelligence agencies, said the peak year for Soviet arms shipments was 1986 when the Sandinistas received $550 million worth of equipment.

That was the last year Congress approved military aid for the Nicaraguan Contras.

A year ago, Congress suspended military aid to the Contras, and as the months passed, Reagan administration officials expressed deep disappointment that the Soviets did not reciprocate by cutting back on weapons shipments to the Sandinistas.

The aid suspension was quickly followed by an interim cease-fire between the Sandinistas and the Contras in late March. Subsequently, about 11,000 Contras fled to camps in Honduras along the border where the rebels are sustained by a U.S. humanitarian aid program.

The Sandinistas have contended that continued Soviet arms shipments were needed in the event the United States decided to resume military aid to the Contras.

Hutton beats MGM, wins $9.75 mil

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar-winning actor Timothy Hutton, who sued MGM for allegedly deceiving him in 1983 about the demise of the motion picture "Roadshow," has been awarded $9.75 million in damages from the studio.

A jury found Friday that the studio committed fraud and breach of contract.

Hutton, who won an Academy Award for his role in the film "Ordinary People," said studio executives told him the picture, about a modern-day cattle drive, was being called off because director Richard Brooks had suffered a heart attack. Actually, MGM lost interest in the movie after a change of management, the actor said.

The month-long trial included testimony from other "Roadshow" actors, including Jack Nicholson. Nicholson resolved matters with MGM several years ago, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

MGM is now owned by Turner Broadcasting.

Liz Claiborne to resign company

NEW YORK (AP) — Liz Claiborne Inc. soon won't have Liz Claiborne as boss.

Ms. Claiborne, 59, said Sunday she will retire in June as chairwoman and president of the major clothing design house she founded. She is one of the few female chief executives of a major U.S. company.

The company also announced that Ms. Claiborne's husband, Arthur Ortenberg, who co-founded the company, will retire from his position as vice chairman of the board of directors. Both will remain as board members, the company said.

"We are looking forward to making time to devote to personal interests and to enjoying the fruits of our labors," the couple said in a statement.

Joyner anticipates post-track life

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Olympic sprinter Florence Griffith Joyner isn't slowing down, despite her retirement from track competition.

On Sunday, a day after announcing her retirement, Griffith Joyner said she's ready to pursue her interests in writing and acting as well as signing a series of endorsement contracts.

"I'm ... looking to more things in my life, to move on, because I know I'll be just as happy as I was in track and field," she said.

Griffith Joyner, 29, appeared at a news conference held after she received the Harvard Foundation for Intercultural and Race Relations Award.

Griffith Joyner said she was honored to win the award, which has been given in the past to Bishop Desmond Tutu and Javier Perez de Cuellar, secretary general of the United Nations.

"Just thinking about who has won the award, it gets me excited. It takes me back to Seoul," she said. There, at the Olympics, Griffith Joyner won three gold medals and a silver.

Job safety bill targets 500,000

COLUMBUS (AP) — A public-employees union launched a drive Monday for a state Occupational Safety and Health Act for about 500,000 state and local public workers not covered by federal job-safety legislation.

David Lauridsen, legislative director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said the proposal will be introduced Tuesday in the House by Rep. Cliff Skeen, D-Akron, with 14 co-sponsors — all Democrats.

He said public employees think it is intolerable that 19 years after enactment of the federal OSHA program for private workers, Ohio's public employees "are still left out in the cold." Other states, such as New York and Michigan, have enacted laws, he said.

AFSCME, Ohio's largest public-employees union with 35,000 members, seeks a state program that would include an inspection and enforcement component to assure compliance with safety and health regulations.

Although some of the public may perceive government employees as office workers who face few perils, Lauridsen said thousands are police, firemen, highway and hospital employees, water and sewer workers and others who face risks daily without the ability to demand safe conditions.

U.S. Shoe sells footwear division

CINCINNATI (AP) — The United States Shoe Corp. announced Monday it will sell its footwear division and Cincinnati headquarters to a management-led group in a program intended to increase the company's value to shareholders.

The purchase price is $422.5 million in cash, U.S. Shoe officials said.

The company said it expects the net proceeds will total $390 million, after taxes and expenses and is subject to possible adjustments of the purchase price before the transaction is closed.

Up to $50 million of the proceeds will be used to pay long-term debts, U.S. Shoe officials said.

Merrill Lynch Capital Partners Inc., an affiliate of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, is leading the investment group and has provided commitments for $160 million of equity and subordinated debt financing for the transaction, U.S. Shoe said.

Key executives of U.S. Shoe's footwear division, including Howard Platt, a company executive vice president who is president of the footwear division, are leaders in the purchasing group, U.S. Shoe announced.

Writers chronicle 'enemy'

EDITOR'S NOTE — If there were a national police blotter, the daily killings and robberies would chronicle a bloody struggle in every city with the potent enemy called drugs. To chart one day's crime in America, Associated Press reporters in nine cities rode in squad cars, shadowed undercover officers and pored through police reports on Feb. 22. Here are their findings.

by Robert Dvorchak
Associated Press writer

Eric Williams, 19, sat in the fading heat of an 86-degree Los Angeles day when a car full of menacing young men cruised down Van Ness Avenue at 7:30 p.m.

Shotgun blasts exploded from the car and Williams fell dead in a crime known as a drive-by shooting. Williams was not known to be a member of a gang. He may have just been in the way of shots aimed at someone else, police said, or he may have been wearing the colors of a rival outfit.

"A wrong look or wearing the wrong color in a certain neighborhood can get you killed," said Los Angeles County Sheriff's Capt. Raymond Gott.

Of the 55 slayings in Williams' neighborhood this year, 15 are believed related to gangs wiping out competitors and protecting their turf.

At least four gangs grossed $1 million a week each last year in cocaine sales, according to Police Commander Lorne Kramer.

"These urban terrorists are destroying hopes for a normal life," said Kramer.

Similar battles are played out daily in every major U.S. city where police fight drugs and crime, which often go hand in hand. On a given day, an average of 2,568 arrests are made for possessing, selling and making drugs, according to the FBI.

Half to three-fourths of the people arrested for serious crimes tested positive for illicit drug use, according to a 1988 U.S. Justice Department study. Drugs can lead to murder, assault, prostitution, theft, robbery and burglary.

"Crime and drugs are umbilically connected," said Peter Bensinger, former director of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration and now a drug consultant in Chicago. "The impact is devastating our cities and our streets."

New York fights the street-by-street war with a Tactical Narcotics Team, or TNT, a sort of special forces unit whose uniforms are filthy jeans and shabby sweat shirts rather than green berets.

Steady rain didn't stop them from donning bulletproof vests and earphones connected to hidden walkie-talkies.

"A junkie doesn't know rain, a junkie doesn't know sleet or cold, a junkie just wants to get off," said Lt. Joseph Murphy.

Among the busts this day, an undercover officer got past a lookout and into a drug den, the basement of an abandoned building that reeked of urine and rotting garbage in the South Bronx.

The officer bought heroin and others waiting in an unmarked car moved in for the bust. Three arrests netted a fistful of heroin packets worth $100. A search of the dealer's office showed 170 of 400 heroin packets were sold before the raid.

In one week, police arrested 125 people and seized 16 cars, two guns, $8,633 in cash and a cache of cocaine, crack, heroin and pot.

With the temperature at 36 degrees, a 20-mph wind whipped through southeast Atlanta, a tough neighborhood known by the cops as "The Zoo."

"They should put a cage around the whole zone," said patrolman Scott Bennett.

The cold slowed the drug trade to about one-third its usual pace. But Ricky Davis was arrested for alleged possession after a chase. Police found a leather pouch containing nine plastic bags, each holding a pea-sized fragment of crack cocaine.

At one point, a reporter was advised to duck behind a trash bin if gunfire erupted.

In Miami, an undercover narcotics team made 14 arrests in assembly line fashion. One was a 16-year-old selling crack outside his apartment.

Across the city that day, about 200 of an estimated 1,000 armed robberies, auto thefts and burglaries were believed to have been drug-related, said police spokesman Ray Lang.

Train owner goes unpunished

by Robert Miller
Associated Press writer

COLUMBUS — A freight train derailment that caused 2,000 people to flee their homes in Akron is not subject to fines or other provisions of a new Ohio law that regulates hazardous shipments, the state said Monday.

Gov. Richard Celeste, however, said the state would push to make shippers responsible for accidents.

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio said CSX Transportation, owner of the wrecked train, apparently is accountable to federal officials only.

CSX also owned a freight train that derailed and caused a similar problem in Miamisburg in 1985.

David Leland, PUCO's transportation division director, said CSX joined other railroads in a suit that led a U.S. District Court in Columbus to rule late last year that railroads are not covered by a law that took effect Sept. 26, 1988.

As a result of the Miamisburg accident and controversy that followed, the Legislature enacted the law to make railroads and truckers register with the state, pay a fee to help train local firefighters in handling hazardous materials and, in some instances, warn of certain shipments in advance.

Leland said CSX and the other railroads argued successfully that the state could not take precedence over federal regulation of railroads in interstate commerce. The state has appealed the decision.

--Gov. Richard F. Celeste

The law empowers PUCO to impose penalties, including fines.

Trucking companies were not affected by the court decision, and PUCO has collected $50,000 in fines from them for various violations in the past several months, Leland said.

He said the state will not be able to impose any fines on CSX and that he would have to check with state lawyers to determine whether the state can investigate.

"We've sent a couple of people up there to help any way they can," he added.

Joining CSX in the lawsuit were Conrail, Norfolk & Western and the Grant Trunk Western Railway.

Leland said that in addition to appealing the decision, Ohio is joining about 30 other states that are trying to get the federal law changed so that the states can regulate rail shipments of toxic and hazardous materials.

The Miamisburg derailment, in July 1985, involved ruptures in tank cars of phosphorus, which filled the air over a wide area of the community southwest of Dayton, forcing about 30,000 residents to evacuate.

Celeste, with the late Rep. C.J.

McLin, D-Dayton, the chief sponsor, went to the Miamisburg site last summer to sign the legislation, which Celeste called one of the most comprehensive in the nation.

Celeste, who was in Washington for a meeting of the National Governors' Association, said if Ohio is unsuccessful in its appeal, the state would seek national legislation to address the issue.

"If the only way we can deal with this is at a national level, it seems to me that we need to seek national legislation," Celeste said.

But he said he was not willing to concede defeat of the Ohio law.

"That's on appeal now, so we're going to have to see what happens," he said. "I think it's a matter of clarifying what our authority is."

I-75 construction may jam traffic

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police are hoping drivers will smoothly ride out more than three years' worth of potential traffic jams on Interstate 75 by taking other routes to work during a $75 million rebuilding of the highway in Cincinnati and neighboring Kentucky.

The potential traffic problems have been the subject of news reports in the Cincinnati metropolitan area for weeks, with police urging drivers to find routes to work other than Interstate 75 while the construction proceeds during the next 44 months.

Work crews began the project before Monday morning's rush hour, restricting four lanes of traffic to two on the Brent Spence Bridge, which carries the briefly parallel Interstates 75 and 71 across the Ohio River between Cincinnati and northern Kentucky.

Transportation officials say I-75 is Ohio's busiest highway and has not been substantially improved through the Cincinnati area since it opened in 1961. The 4.1-mile Cincinnati stretch scheduled for rebuilding is now carrying up to 180,000 cars a day, more than it was designed to handle, transportation officials said.

The rebuilding on the Ohio side is to replace an outdated center median strip with concrete barriers, improve bridge overpasses and resurface the interstate's old concrete with new asphalt. In northern Kentucky, the construction is planned to straighten a hazardous hillside curve that has been the site of frequent accidents.

Police said Monday morning's rush-hour traffic wasn't nearly as bad as predicted. Motorists appeared to have heeded warnings to stay away from I-75 so well that they jammed alternate routes.

By 7 a.m., northbound Interstate 471 into Ohio was backed up. Feeder routes in Covington, Ky., across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, had delays of up to 15 minutes as motorists waited to turn onto the Clay Wade Bailey Bridge.

About the same time, the Brent Spence Bridge's traffic flowed smoothly.

"It was fine," said Larry Alford, a Cincinnati Bell Inc. employee who drives a van shared with 14 commuting passengers from Corinth, Ky., and used the Spence Bridge.

"We left 15 minutes earlier than usual and had a 9½-minute wait from the time we stopped until we got across the bridge," Alford said.

Top economists predict recession for next year

by Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The economy will slow substantially in 1989 with rising inflation and higher interest rates likely to topple the country into a recession before the end of next year, the nation's top business economists predicted Monday.

The National Association of Business Economists said a survey of its members found them slightly more optimistic about growth prospects for this year than they were three months ago.

But by lopsided numbers, the economists were still predicting that the most likely date for the start of the next recession was 1990.

Three out of four of the economists surveyed expected a new recession sometime in the next two years. However, the number predicting a downturn in 1989 dropped from 40 percent to 19 percent in the latest survey.

Jay Woodworth, president of the association, said that economists were more optimistic about 1989 in part because of signs that auto sales, retail spending and housing construction were holding up even with the increase in interest rates.

"The business economists feel that this expansion is not at the end of its string yet. We probably have another year or so to go," Woodworth, senior domestic economist at Bankers Trust Co. of New York, said at a news briefing.

The new survey was taken before the latest round of credit-tightening on the part of the Federal Reserve Board. Last Friday, the Fed boosted its discount rate, the interest it charges to make loans to financial institutions, to 7 percent. A hike in the discount rate is the most dramatic signal the central bank can send of its intentions to push interest rates higher to dampen an overheated economy.

The business economists expressed strong support for the Fed's inflation-fighting battle, with 70 percent expecting the board to boost interest rates further in the next six months.

Woodward said the inflationary pressures, if they do not start receding, would likely take their toll on the expansion, which has already lasted a peacetime record of six years.

"Inflation rates of 5 percent to 5.25 percent are too high to be consistent with long-term growth and over time they would send the economy into a recession," he said.

The median forecast for growth this year, as measured by the gross national product, was 2.7 percent, up slightly from a 2.5 percent estimate made by the business economists three months ago. The economy grew at a four-year high of 3.8 percent last year.

Bush to lobby for Tower

by Donna Cassata
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats remained unmoved Monday on John Tower's nomination as defense secretary, despite his unprecedented pledge to abstain from alcohol if confirmed. President Bush, meanwhile, returned home to rein in wavering Republicans and swing Democrats.

Senators trekked to a special committee hearing room to read the latest FBI report on Tower, while those members the Bush administration hopes to sway indicated they are either undecided or leaning against confirmation.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., considered by some a swing vote, told reporters in Miami that Tower's pledge helps but "it's not just the drinking which is a problem to me."

"It's a pattern of bad judgment — bad judgment in the 1970s in drinking, bad judgment by placing himself in compromising positions as the U.S. arms negotiator in Geneva in the mid-80s, bad judgment in accepting large sums from the defense industry in the late 1980s," Graham said.

The Democratic-controlled Senate Armed Services Committee voted 11-9 along party lines last Thursday to recommend that the full Senate reject the nomination, with panel chairman Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., citing Tower's drinking habits among other concerns.

Tower on Sunday sought to allay the fears of his former colleagues by issuing an extraordinary pledge not to take a single drink if he is confirmed. The full Senate is expected to vote Wednesday.

Democrats hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate, meaning Bush must pick up at least five Democrats and hold all Republicans to assure confirmation.

Nuclear mishaps feared

Americans support nuclear power, oppose new plants

by Gary Langer
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — Half the Americans in a national poll believe a serious accident is likely at a U.S. nuclear power plant, despite safeguards put in place since the Three Mile Island accident a decade ago.

Fifty-five percent of the respondents in the Media General-Associated Press survey supported the use of nuclear power to generate electricity. But eight in 10 favored tougher federal safety regulations and most opposed building new plants.

Most also opposed starting up completed nuclear power plants that are not yet running. And while 48 percent said currently operating plants should stay open, 44 percent said they should be either phased out or shut down at once.

The national survey of 1,162 adults had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent. It was conducted Jan. 4-12, in advance of the 10th anniversary of the accident March 28, 1979, at the Three Mile Island plant in Middletown, Pa.

Al Franco

Franco's Fragments

When Robert Redford played Roy Hobbs in The Natural, Hobbs said, "I just want to walk down the street and have the people say, 'There's Roy Hobbs, the best that ever was.'"

Let's face it, we can all identify with that.

The other day, I passed a couple of kids in the street playing hockey. And it all came back. You could see it in their eyes—that gleam. The gleam which said these youngsters were of a higher dimension. They weren't just John Doe's from Bowling Green but Wayne Gretzky's and Mario Lemieux's.

Man, that was a great feeling, calling who you were in a pick-up game. I was always Tony Esposito in hockey or Rod Carew in baseball.

Esposito was a goalie for the Chicago Blackhawks in the 70's who used the butterfly style. He would flop to his knees when the action became tight and so did I.

My mother used to scold me about two dark circles on the front of my jeans where I would drop to my knees. I didn't care—you have to make sacrifices if you're going to be a professional goalie.

I seemed to spend as many hours on the streets or ponds as Esposito as I did in real life as Al Franco. If I did that today, at my age, I'd be referred for psychiatric treatment. But hey, it was legal then.

The aspirations would continue through high school, but on a more realistic scale. Such as, "I'm going to be a college baseball player."

But when you come to college, for many of us, it's a dead end. You hang on for a while, still believing, then give in.

I'll never forget the day that my dreams were shattered.

During spring break of my freshman year, I became flustered with being the epitome of the couch sloth, so I enticed my brother into playing catch with a baseball.

I went down to the cedar closet and looked for my baseball mitt. In the process, I saw my high school letter jacket and had to slip it on for old-time's sake.

I held the jacket in my hands as I reflected on slapping an RBI single in extra innings against our rival high school to knock in the winning run.

I looked at the coat again. There were crossed bats and a football on the letter "L" and league championship patches down the sleeve.

When I put it on, it was a little tight (especially around the waist). But the size wasn't the problem, it just didn't fit.

I realized I wasn't a part of sports camaraderie anymore. My daily schedule no longer consisted of daydreaming through classes in anticipation of practice or a game. I could no longer add to the playing field or locker room stories.

Then, my brother came in and said he didn't feel like playing anymore; he was going to his girlfriend's. Neither did I, I had played my game.

From that moment on, sport became merely a physical activity. It was hard to imagine that I had played my last locker room prank (I think it was Ben-Gay on someone's deodorant).

That's not to say that I don't add my tales, as time goes on, folklore into a prominent male-bonding activity at the bars. Just like firing up a stogie while playing cards, men love to talk high school sports over beer—"Glory Days."

But you leave it at the bars. You know inside the competitor at a Division I school is too tough and you're not good enough.

Heck, I get lost in the shuffle of intramurals, where there are thousands of athletes who are better than or just as good as I am. In fact, intramurals act as a good medium to ease the transition from stardom to, well, boredom.

And after four years (well, maybe five or six) of college, you dwindle into the depths of slow-pitch softball and golf, but that's life.

And maybe it would be better for those who are like myself if The Natural ended with the first pitch in Roy Hobbs' first major league plate appearance. He steps to the plate and takes the pitch for a strike inside.

"Hobbs doesn't like the call," the announcer spoke. "Well, welcome to the majors, Mr. Hobbs."

Falcon icers sweep St. Cloud

by Don Hensley
assistant sports editor

With the Central Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs just around the corner, the Bowling Green hockey team needed to prove to itself that it could still put the puck in the net.

And if last weekend was any indication, it shouldn't have any doubts, as they swept St. Cloud State (19-14-2) by a count of 6-3 on Saturday and 6-2 Friday.

The sweep helped the Falcons break out of a two-week scoring slump which saw them net only nine points in four games.

"More than anything, it (12 goals) is going to boost our confidence," BG co-captain Greg Parks said. "These last few weekends we've been kind of slumping on offense and now, hopefully, this will give us the confidence we need going into the playoffs."

It didn't take the Falcons (23-14-3 overall, 15-14-3 CCHA) long to get on the board in Saturday's game as Nelson Emerson recorded his 200th career point when he slid the puck under the sprawling Mike O'Hara to give BG a 1-0 lead.

After Emerson's goal, the Falcons received two power-play opportunities, but they were unable to get a shot off in what resulted in almost four consecutive minutes of man advantage.

But they didn't need to worry because before the night was over, they would have eight more power-play chances, which would result in three goals for the Falcons.

"We were stuck killing penalties for probably more than half of the game, which I thought was a little ridiculous," St. Cloud Coach Craig Dahl said. "I mean we were forced to kill so many of them that we just couldn't keep holding them off time after time."

The Falcons scored their first power play goal just 1:11 into the third period with the Huskies holding a slim 2-1 lead.

With two of BG's power play leaders, (Parks and Emerson) both in the penalty box serving 10-minute misconducts, Matt Ruchty tipped home a rebound that came off of a Joe Quinn blast to even the score at two apiece.

Both teams then added a goal apiece, and the score remained tied until Dan Bylsma took things into his own hands.

The freshman, who had recorded only one goal all season, tallied two red-lighters 30 seconds apart to blow the game wide open.

"I've had a lot of close chances all year," Bylsma said. "The coaches told me to just keep working and eventually they'd go in."

With the Falcons leading 5-3, Rob Blake wrapped up the scoring when he beat O'Hara with a blast from the high slot to give BG the 6-3 victory.

But the standing ovation was still a few minutes away.

With 1:35 left in the game, BG head coach Jerry York replaced starting goaltender Paul Connell with seldom-used third-string goalie Christian Albitz and the crowd responded with a standing ovation.

Then, the final shift of the night, the Falcons used the five seniors (Parks, Alan Leggett, Thad Rusiecki, Steve Dickinson, and Chad Arthur), giving them a chance to skate together for their last time in the Ice Arena.

In Friday's game, the heroics were saved for BG's Marc Potvin who recorded his first career hat trick.

BG records 15th-straight Lady cagers down Chips to clinch tie

by Amy Cole
sports reporter

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. — For the first time in 15 games, the Bowling Green women's basketball team looked as though it finally had met its match.

But with the chance of clinching at least a tie with Toledo for a third consecutive Mid-American Conference championship on their minds, the Falcons came from a 13-point deficit in the first half to defeat Central Michigan 91-78 Saturday afternoon in Dan Rose Center.

BG upset its record to 22-3 overall and an unblemished 14-0 in the MAC, while the Chippewas dropped to 10-16 and 6-9, respectively.

"We wanted to win it (the MAC) outright," BG head coach Fran Voll said. "Wherever we go, (the other teams) know we are the team to beat."

Led by the rebounding and inside shooting of Mary Oswald and 1988 MAC Freshman of the Year Sue Nissen, the Chippewas appeared to be the MAC team to defeat the Falcons this season as they raced to lead BG 32-19 at the 7:26 mark of the first half.

Nissen, a 6-foot forward, scored 14 of those 32 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, while Oswald, a 6-foot-2 center, pitched in 10 points and two rebounds.

"They came after us well," Voll said. "Oswald and Nissen were tough on us early. They (CMU) came after us hard."

"(But) I didn't think we came out well. We were very flat and I was concerned with that."

However, the Falcons were given a prime opportunity to inflate as Oswald was fouled by the game because of foul trouble. BG capitalized on the loss of Oswald, who had three personal fouls, and scored 13-straight points to even the score at 32.

"We played as well as we could play in the first 10 minutes," CMU head coach Donita Davenport said. "The critical point in the game is when Oswald picked up her third foul. We lost our rebounding and we lost our defense."

"Defense was the key in the early going. It is what cost us in the end."

As the Chippewas lost their rebounding and defense, the Falcons' Paulette Backstrom, who posted a game-high 11 assists, as well as nine points and four steals, initiated a transition game and fast-break offense which gave BG a 42-37 lead going into intermission.

Men cagers' win streak snapped

by Mark Huntebrinker
sports editor

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. — The Bowling Green men's basketball team ran into what is fast becoming a long-time nemesis last Saturday afternoon — the Central Michigan Chippewas.

CMU's 81-70 victory at the Dan Rose Center not Larranaga only halted a three-game Falcon win streak which had put them in a position to make a big move upwards in the Mid-American Conference, but it marked the six-straight victory over BG during the last three seasons.

The Chippewas, 12-14 overall and 6-9 in the MAC, used the same old formula in continuing their three-year stronghold on the Falcons.

"It seems like whenever we face this team (CMU), it's much more physical than any other game we're involved in all season long," said BG head coach Jim Larranaga. "Today's game was very different from the games we have played in the last three or four weeks, but very similar to the game we played against them at our place earlier in the year."

Chippewa head coach Charlie Coles said he can't pinpoint why BG seems to bring out the best in his team. "For some reason we play well against Bowling Green," he said. "I didn't have any idea we would play this well, but today was by far our best game of the year."

Six-foot-8 forward Carter Briggs' 19 points led CMU in scoring, but it was senior Derrick Richmond who played the key role in dooming the Falcons. The 5-foot-8 playmaker made his last appearance at the Dan Rose Center one to remember as he set the pace for the game while tallying eight points and five assists in the process.

"Derrick Richmond was a very good player today," Coles said. "I thought he controlled the game from the beginning to the end. That may have been his finest game as a Chippewa."

BG jumped to a 7-4 lead in the first three minutes of the game, but 12 unanswered points aided by two three-point shots by Briggs and another from senior Ed Wilcox (13 points) provided a nine-point Chippewa margin 3:47 later.

Two Kirk Whiteman free throws cut the Falcons' deficit to 22-18, the closest BG would get the rest of the game because the final two minutes of the first half saw the Chippewas virtually run away from the Falcons. Leading 39-30 with 2:28 remaining, CMU outscored BG 7-2 the remainder of the half.

One key element of the Chippewa run did not occur on the floor, however. With the score 42-30 with 34 seconds left, Larranaga expressed his displeasure over the refereeing and drew a double technical foul. The result was CMU's Mike Avery sinking all four free throws granted from the technicals and gave the Chippewas a 46-32 edge at halftime.

"I just let the referees know I didn't think I was seeing the same game," Larranaga said of the technicals. "I was doing my job and they were doing theirs. They just rewarded me for my efforts."

The Chippewas scored the first four points of the second half and never looked back. The Falcons drew no closer than their final deficit of 11 points.

Senior guard Joe Gregory led BG with 19 points, followed by Derek Kizer and and Whiteman with 11 each.

Avery added 16 points for the Chippewas, while Carson Butler and Yamen Sanders contributed 13 and 12 points, respectively.

Tumblers continue climb

by Matt Schroder
sports reporter

For the third week in a row, the Bowling Green women's gymnastics team has broken a school record for most points in a single meet.

The feat was again performed on the road, last Friday in Kentucky.

The Falcons amassed 180.5 points to top their previous highs of 180.05 and 179.75. Friday's meet brought their season average score to 179.36. BG's sas has increased two full points in the last two weeks. The improvement is an encouraging sign for head coach Charles Simpson.

"We've had some really good 'on the road' meets lately," Simpson said. "We want that sas to be as high as possible."

Currently, BG stands in eighth place in the region with teams such as Ohio State, Penn State, New Hampshire and Kent State ahead of them. At the end of the regular season, the top seven teams in the region will compete at Penn State for the right to move on in the NCAA tournament.

Recently, the Falcons have been taking advantage of every meet. Although they were outscored by both UK and New Hampshire last weekend, the individual scores continue to increase.

"I was really happy with how well we performed," Simpson said. "The girls again realized that, if we can get it all together, we will start scoring even better than we have."

BG started Friday's meet on the bars and none of the Falcon gymnasts placed in the top six in that event.

"We had kind of a slow start," Simpson said. "Our bars set is what we have to work on the most."

The Falcons next event was the beam and the results were more favorable.

Track teams finish fifth at invite

The Bowling Green men's and women's track teams finished fifth in the Mid-American Conference Indoor Invitational Saturday.

The host school, Eastern Michigan, took the top honors in both the men's and women's meets held at Bowen Field House in Ypsilanti, Mich.

In the men's meet, the Hurons gathered 184 points, followed by Western Michigan with 130. The rest of the field included third-place Central Michigan (94), Ball State (86), BG (56), Kent State (49), Ohio University (21) and Toledo (3).

The Falcons failed to have a first-place finisher, but did record some top-five finishes.

Mike Young finished second in the 35-pound weight throw with a toss of 57-2, while Reed Parks finished fourth (54-8 1/4).

Ron Heard placed third in three events: the 55-meter (6.38), long jump (23-9) and 200-meter (21.95).

Brian Donnelly and Steve Oxer placed fifth in the 5,000-meter and the 800-meter, respectively. Donnelly was timed at 14:57.14, while Oxer finished at 1:55.64.

BG's women tracksters registered similar results (the Hurons won the women's event and BG finished fifth), but fared better in the individual events.

But BG was able to capture three events at the MAC indoor meet courtesy of Beth Manson, Tracy Gaerke and the 4 x 800-meter relay team.

Manson copped top honors in the shot put with a school record throw of 47 feet-3. Gaerke won the 800-meter race with the time of 2:11.77.

The 4 x 800 relay team (Andrea Rombes, Missie Betz, Laura Shultes and Ingrid Arnato) also set a school record in winning the event with a time of 9:20.57.

Melissa Cole set a school record when she finished third in the 200-meter with a time of 25.2. Cole also posted a fourth-place finish in the 400-meter (57.53).

Sweep

The first part of the trifecta came only 59 seconds into the game when he blistered a shot from just inside the blue line that found the net behind Huskie goalie Craig Shermoen.

Shermoen also played an excellent game as the Falcons peppered him with 38 shots throughout the game. But, it was a night that belonged to Potvin.

"Marc Potvin played an outstanding game, and a lot of it was because he was moving with and without the puck," York said. "He got his legs into his game and when he does that he is much more effective."

Second-string goaltender John Burke also played an outstanding game which saw him turn aside 22 shots while recording his fifth victory of the year.

With the playoffs starting this weekend, the Falcons will travel to Ann Arbor to take on Michigan in a best-of-three series. And the focus will once again be on defense.

BG has held its opponents to three goals or less in their last 10 games.

"We are really on a roll defensively right now, and we have a tremendous amount of confidence knowing we are not going to give up four or five goals," Connell said. "And come down to playoff time goals against are very important."

Win

"We seemed to slowly get into it," Voll said. "Then we got some help and got our running game going."

From intermission until the final buzzer, the Falcons never relinquished their lead.

Sparked by Jackie Motycka's 15 of 19 from the field for a game-high 34 points and six rebounds, the BG began the second half by outscoring CMU 11-2 in the first two and a half minutes to take a 12-point lead. BG would eventually lead by as much as 19 points.

"We needed a game like this to remind (us) to play hard," Motycka said. "This is the toughest we've played in the MAC. Central has potential in the MAC tournament the way they played today."

In addition to leading all scorers, Motycka, a 6-foot forward, recorded the 2,000th point of her career by scoring two points off the fast break at the 8:43 mark in the second half. She is only the second player in the MAC to reach the 2,000-point mark.

Voll said the game was a test for his team, especially since the starters saw more playing time than they had in the last couple of games.

"Jackie and the kids had more time in this game," Voll said. "A comment Jackie made to me was 'I'm kind of tired.' We haven't been in a situation recently where we have been tested."

Cavs, Pistons gear for showdown

RICHFIELD, O. (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers match their NBA-best record against the Detroit Pistons twice this week, with the Cavaliers treating the contests as important, but not crucial.

"We're not looking at these two games as do or die at all," said Cavaliers point guard Mark Price. "We've taken the attitude all along that our season is not going to rest on one or two games. Our goal is to have the best record in the Eastern Conference."

The Pistons, 36-15, have been attempting to wrest the Central Division lead from the Cavaliers, 41-12, since mid-December.

The last time the two teams met, in Detroit, Cavaliers' Center Brad Daugherty and his Pistons' counterpart, Bill Laimbeer, were thrown out of the game for fighting. The Cavaliers hung on to win that game 80-79. Daugherty and Laimbeer were fined $5,000 apiece, and each was suspended for one game.

"To be honest, I am not even thinking about fighting and all that stuff," Daugherty said. "I am going to come out Tuesday night with the idea of playing basketball."

"I don't mind pushing and shoving, because that's part of the game. If they want to play dirty, though, that's just the way we will play."

The Cavaliers have a 20-game winning streak at home and especially want to win the home game on Tuesday. The two teams play in Detroit on Friday.

"We especially want to win here," Price said. "We don't want to give them the idea they can beat us here."

Wayne (Tree) Rollins, the Cavaliers' 12-year veteran who has appeared in more playoff games (56) than any of his teammates, said the Pistons aren't backed into a corner at this point.

"It's too early for them to get desperate," he said. "They know we have to go on an extended road trip. As has been our way all season, we're not putting any more emphasis on these two games against Detroit than any others."

Larry Nance of the Cavaliers doesn't understand all the media attention Tuesday's game is getting.

"Honestly, I'm just approaching it as any other game we need to win at home," he said. "I haven't thought about it in any other way and I don't care to think about it in any other way."

Blaylock, Jackson finalists

(AP)—Oklahoma teammates Stacey King and Mookie Blaylock and Louisiana State freshman guard Chris Jackson were among the 10 finalists announced Monday for The Associated Press college basketball player of the year award.

The list was divided evenly among frontcourt and backcourt players with Stanford's Todd Litchi, Indiana's Jay Edwards and Syracuse's Sherman Douglas joining Blaylock and Jackson as the guards eligible for the honor, which will be announced Friday, March 31 at the Final Four.

King was the only true center on the list, and he was joined by forwards Danny Ferry of Duke, Sean Elliott of Arizona, Pervis Ellison of Louisville and Glen Rice of Michigan.

The coaches of the top four teams in the current rankings were among the 10 finalists for the coach of the year award.

Arizona's Lute Olson, whose team retook the top spot this week, was joined by Nos. 2-4: Georgetown's John Thompson, Indiana's Bob Knight and Oklahoma's Billy Tubbs.

Also on the list was P.J. Carlesimo of Seton Hall, Rick Majerus of Ball State, Lynn Nance of St. Mary's, Calif., Gale Catlett of West Virginia, Dale Brown of Louisiana State and Mike Krzyzewski of Duke.

The finalists for both awards were determined in a vote by the same panel of sports writers and broadcasters which selects the Top Twenty.

The entire membership of The Associated Press votes on the nominees.

The player of the year is presented as the Adolph Rupp Trophy, which is sponsored by the Commonwealth Club of Lexington, Ky.

WOMEN AND MEN ARE EQUAL ALLIES IN THE STRUGGLE FOR A JUST SOCIETY

Society, for too long, has kept us divided as Women and Men. It is necessary that the Bond of Camaraderie and the Spirit of Unity be Re-Kinded.

The Struggle Against All Forms of Oppression Cannot be Accomplished Without a Unity of OUR Efforts and a Greater Understanding of OUR Concerns and Goals, Especially During the Present Period.

Let us Discuss and Plan Together for the Future.
Tues. Feb. 28, at 9pm
UCF Center, Thurston & Ridge
All are invited to Participate
Dr. Dympra Messer, Chair of Women's Studies, will serve as facilitator and presenter

Sponsored by the Progressive Student Organization (PSO)

I was so terrified of losing you that day,
It caught me by surprise, I knew not what to say.
My speech started to tremble, it stammered and it swayed,
And then I just turned quiet for the first time in our day.

Suddenly, tears came welling up, I fought hard not to cry.
As my heart felt it was being torn apart and I was going to die.

Then the lightness of your fingertips brushed gently across my face,
To let me know you love me, When I was afraid and losing faith.
For there was something deep within you and deep within me too,
That cried out in the silence that we are one, not two.

My God, how much I love you, I just had to let you know.
My dearest loving Julie, your Randy loves you so!
